Man Goes Stark Craving Mad

Police in Massachusetts have arrested a man they say was so desperate for a sugar fix that he smashed the glass front door of a closed Foxborough, Mass., convenience store, left a $5 bill on the counter, and made off with several candy bars and packages of cigarette. Police say 25-year-old Edward Cowen was arrested Thursday and charged with breaking and entering, malicious destruction and larceny from a building. (AP)

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., faces his primary challenger, Indiana state Treasurer Richard Mourdock, on Tuesday. Lugar, 80, hasn't had a primary challenger since he became a senator in 1976.

With Congress returning from recess, the Senate plans to vote Tuesday on whether to start debating a Democratic plan to keep college loan interest rates from doubling on July 1.

Syria Braces For Elections

Nationwide parliamentary elections are scheduled for Monday in Syria. The regime, under President Bashar Assad, has portrayed the vote as a sign of willingness to carry out reforms.

Mirror Images in Campaign

Romney, Obama share many of the traits they use as attack fodder

Washington

He's a smug, Harvard-trained elitist who doesn't get how regular Americans are struggling these days. More extreme than he lets on, he's keeping his true agenda hidden until after Election Day. He's clueless about fixing the economy, over his head on foreign policy. Who is he?

Your answer will help decide the next president.

Is it Barack Obama, as seen by Mitt Romney? Or Romney, the way Obama depicts him? For all their liberal versus conservative differences, when the two presidential contenders describe each other, they sound like they're ragging on the same flawed guy. Or mirror images of that guy.

Will voters prefer the man waving with his left hand or his right?

Blame it on two cautious candidates with more traits in common than their disparate early biographies would suggest.

No Drama Obama is panned as professorial and aloof. Romney is deemed boring when he's not being awkward. Distrusted as too moderate within his own party, each is demonized as a radical by the other

Both candidates are slammed as ...... "out of touch" with ordinary Americans.

Mitt Romney grew up wealthy, with a governor for a father. Worth $200 million or more. He's the kind of guy who had a Swiss bank account, Democrats note.

President Obama doesn't understand the real world because "he spent too much time at Harvard," Romney said, who earned two Harvard degrees himself.

... bad for the middle class.

Romney wants to reduce taxes on the wealthy while cutting Medicare, health care and other programs the middle class needs, Democrats charge.

Obama failed to deliver on his promises to help Americans "struggling to find good jobs and make ends meet," the Romney camp says.

... unable to fix the economy.

As a venture capitalist, Romney laid off workers and shipped jobs to Mexico, the Obama campaign says.

Obama can't get the jobless rate below 8 percent. He "delayed the recovery and made it anemic," according to Romney.

side. They don't get specific about the tough stuff, like budget cuts or taxes, that would invite more precisely calibrated negative ads.

Add a presidential contest buried beneath a single issue, the economy, and original lines of attack are scarce. The candidates take jabs anyway.

"They're trying to define each other ... They're throwing out different characterizations to see which one resonates."

— KEN DUBERSTEIN, CHIEF OF STAFF TO PRESIDENT RONALD REAGAN.

Attacks big or small get batted back, even if the response amounts to "I know you are, what am I?"

Democrats accuse Republicans of a "war on women," Romney's campaign notes rising female unemployment during the Obama years. The Obama camp jokes about Romney's dog riding on the roof of the family car; Republicans respond that Obama ate dog meat as a boy in Indonesia.

With quickie Internet videos and instant comebacks via Twitter, "the attack and counterattack is happening in real time," said political communications expert Kathleen Hall Jamieson. CONNIE CASS (AP)

Wife Witnesses Soldier's Death Over Skype

Dallas

An Army nurse showed no alarm or discomfort before suddenly collapsing during a Skype video chat with his wife, who saw a bullet hole in a closet behind him, his family said Sunday.

Capt. Bruce Kevin Clark's family released a statement describing what his wife saw April 30 in the video feed that recorded her husband's death in Tarin Kowt, Afghanistan.

"Clark was suddenly knocked forward," the statement said. "The closet behind him had a bullet hole in it. The other individuals, including a member of the military, who rushed to the home of CPT Clark's wife also saw the hole [in the video] and agreed it was a bullet hole."

The statement says the Skype link remained open for two hours after Clark collapsed as family and friends in the U.S. and Afghanistan tried to get him help.

"After two hours and many frantic phone calls by Mrs. Clark, two military personnel arrived in the room [in Afghanistan] and appeared to check his pulse, but provided no details about his condition to his wife," the statement said.

The Pentagon said previously that Clark's death remains under investigation.

Susan Orellana-Clark said she was providing details of what she saw "to honor my husband and dispel the inaccurate information and supposition promulgated by other parties."

Capt. Bruce Kevin Clark grew up in Michigan and previously lived in Spencerport, N.Y. He joined the Army in 2006 and left for Afghanistan in March.

U.S. officials in Afghanistan referred questions to the Pentagon, which previously referred questions to the William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso, where Clark was assigned.

Clarence Davis, spokesman for William Beaumont Army Medical Center, declined to comment on Clark's family's statement.

Clark, 43, was deployed to Afghanistan in March.

Clark's body was returned Thursday to Dover Air Force Base.

He is also survived by two daughters, ages 3 and 9. TERRY

Biden OK With Gay Marriage

Washington

Vice President Joe Biden says he's "absolutely comfortable" with gay couples who marry getting the same civil rights and liberties as heterosexual couples, a stand that gay rights advocates interpreted as an endorsement of same-sex marriage.

The White House and President Obama's re-election campaign, eager to avoid a debate on a hot-button social issue in an election year, insisted Biden was not breaking ranks with Obama, who does not publicly support gay marriage.

Biden told NBC's "Meet the Press" on Sunday that marriage should be about being loyal to

Not An Endorsement

Vice President Biden has said that personal views, as well as the country's, on gay marriage are evolving.

The vice president's office said Sunday that Biden's comments were not an endorsement, but simply a reaffirmation of his belief that same-sex couples deserve the same rights and protections as all Americans. (AP) someone you love, whether that marriage is between a man and a woman, two men or two women. "I am absolutely comfortable with the fact that men marrying men, women marrying women and heterosexual men and women marrying one another are entitled to the same exact rights, all the civil rights, all the civil liberties," said Biden, a devout Catholic.

Gay rights advocates said Biden's comments signaled unmistakable support for gay marriage, which they said made him the highest-ranking member in the Obama administration to do so.

"I'm grateful that the vice president of the United States is now publicly supporting marriage equality," said Chad Griffin, a gay rights supporter and a member of the Obama campaign's national finance committee. JULIE PACE (AP)

Protest in Moscow Turns Bloody

Demonstrators clash on the eve of Putin's switch to president

Moscow

A demonstration by at least 20,000 people a day before Vladimir Putin's inauguration as president turned into a battle with police Sunday after protesters tried to split off from the approved venue and march to the Kremlin.

Club-wielding officers seized demonstrators, dragging some by the hair, others by the neck.

More than 400 people were arrested, and police said that 12 riot police officers were injured.

Sunday's demonstration started out peacefully, with protesters cheerfully marching down a wide avenue. Some demonstrators aimed to turn up the pressure by trying to head to the Kremlin.

When a phalanx of riot police blocked their approach to the bridge leading to the Kremlin, the protesters formed human chains and some hurled stones at the police.

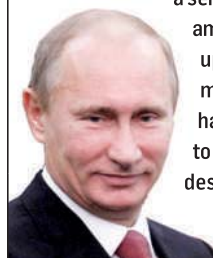

After about an hour, police began pushing protesters back and harshly detained some of them.

President-elect Francois Hollande waves Sunday after his victory speech in Tulle, France.

Hollande Seizes Win

French voters oust Sarkozy, a decision likely to alter how Europe tackles debt

Paris

Socialist Francois Hollande defeated conservative incumbent Nicolas Sarkozy on Sunday to become France's next president, heralding a change in how Europe tackles its debt crisis and how France flexes its military and diplomatic muscle around the world.

Exuberant, diverse crowds filled the Place de la Bastille, the iconic plaza of the French Revolution, to fete Hollande's victory, waving French, European and labor union flags and climbing its central column. Leftists are overjoyed to have one of their own in power for the first time since Socialist Francois Mitterrand was president from 1981 to 1995.

"Austerity can no longer be inevitable!" Hollande declared in his victory speech Sunday night after a surprising campaign that saw him transform from an unremarkable, mild figure to an increasingly statesmanlike one.

Sarkozy is the latest victim of a wave of voter anger at government spending cuts around Europe that have tossed out governments and leaders over the past couple of years.

Hollande promised help for France's down-trodden after years under Sarkozy, a man many voters saw as too friendly with the rich and blamed for economic troubles.

Hollande, whose inauguration must happen no later than May 16, said European partners should be relieved and not frightened by his presidency.

A New Order in Europe

Greece

At the height of Greece's financial crisis, Socialist leader George Papandreou is forced out in November 2011 after he endangers the country's bailout.

Italy

Long-reviled premier Silvio Berlusconi, above, exits in November 2011 as investors lose confidence in his ability to rein in debt.

Spain

The Socialists of Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero, who implemented crushing austerity moves, are ousted in November 2011.

Greece

The nation cast ballots Sunday in a parliamentary vote key to pulling itself out of a deep financial crisis that has threatened its position in the eurozone. Thirty-two parties were vying for the support of nearly 10 million registered voters.

Serbia

The nation of 7.1 million people in southeast Europe held presidential, parliamentary and municipal elections. The outcomes could affect Serbia's relations with the European Union as well as Kosovo, a one-time province whose declaration of independence Serbia has refused to accept.

Germany

Voters in the northernmost state of Schleswig-Holstein elected a new legislature, a popularity test for Chancellor Angela Merkel's center-right coalition. About 2.24 million people were eligible to vote.

Italy

It's the nation's first election since Premier Mario Monti was tapped to save Italy from its debt crisis. The balloting is seen as a gauge of public anger against parties supporting his austerity measures. About 9.5 million Italians were eligible to vote Sunday and Monday for 942 city councils and mayorships.

Armenia

About 2.5 million Armenians were eligible to vote for a new parliament in an election the nation's president hoped would give him a legislative majority. Serge Sarkisian's Republican Party was expected to win, but it wanted the majority in the 131-seat body to avoid having to form a coalition.

"I am proud to have been capable of giving people hope again," Hollande told huge crowds of supporters in Tulle. "We will succeed!"

Hollande inherits an economy that's a driver of the EU but is deep in debt. He wants more government stimulus, and more government spending in general, despite concerns in the markets that France needs to urgently trim its debt.

While some market players have worried about a Hollande presidency, Jeffrey Bergstrand, professor of finance at the University of Notre Dame, said it's a good thing that Hollande will push for more spending throughout Europe to stimulate the economy.

The amount of votes Francois Hollande had secured Sunday night, with 75 percent of the vote counted, official results showed. Nicolas Sarkozy had 48.9 percent of the ballots cast. (AP)

Europe is "going into a really serious and poor situation," Bergstrand said. Hollande "is going to become the speaker for those countries that want to do something about economic growth."

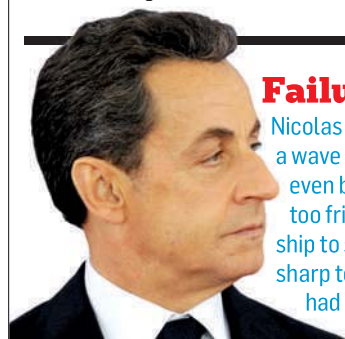

Sarkozy conceded defeat minutes after the polls closed, saying he had called Hollande to wish him "good luck" as the country's new leader.

Sarkozy, who ran the country through its worst recession since World War II and the ensuing European debt crisis, said he did his best to win a second term, despite widespread anger at his handling of the economy.

"I bear responsibility ... for the defeat," he said. "I committed myself totally, fully, but I didn't succeed in convincing a majority of French. ... I didn't succeed in making the values we share win." ANGELA CHARLTON AND ELAINE GANLEY (AP)

Failure to Deliver

Nicolas Sarkozy came to France's presidency in 2007 on a wave of hope for change that critics say he squandered even before the debt crisis. They saw his tax reforms as too friendly to the rich, his divorce in office and courtship to supermodel Carla Bruni as unseemly and his sharp tongue as unfitting for his esteemed role. Sarkozy had said he would quit politics if he lost the presidency, but was vague about his plans Sunday. (AP)

More Bikes Coming to Md.

Montgomery County, Rockville to get share systems in near future

Rockville, Md.

Montgomery County has received state money to help establish a Capital Bikeshare program next year in Friendship Heights, Bethesda, the Medical Center Metro station area, Takoma Park and Silver Spring, county officials said last week.

The 350 bikes and 50 bike-docking stations should be up and running in about 12 months, said county spokeswoman Esther Bowring.

The program is estimated to cost $2.15 million to establish. The new state grant of $1 million brings the total committed to the project to about $1.5 million. The other funding includes another recently approved state grant for $250,000 and an additional $250,000 pledged by the private sector. County funding will make up the rest, Bowring said.

The program is expected to cost $500,000 annually to operate and maintain, Bowring said. About $200,000 of that should be covered by membership fees and priate sponsorships, she said, with the county covering the rest.

Last year, the county received federal grant money and funding from the city of Rockville for 20 Bikeshare stations and 200 bikes in the areas of Rockville and Shady Grove/Life Sciences Center. That program is expected to be up and running later this year, Bowring said. KATHERINE SHAVER

Metro: Juveniles Released Pepper Spray on Train

Transportation

Metro officials said they were looking for juveniles at L'Enfant Plaza who released pepper spray in a Blue Line train around 3:05 p.m. Thursday. The train was headed in the direction of Franconia-Springfield.

Dan Stessel, Metro's chief spokesman, said the pepper spray was released on car No. 3112.

The car was isolated at the Smithsonian stop, he said, and "passengers were moved to another car." There were no reports of injuries, and Stessel said no one requested medical attention.

He said transit police canvassed L'Enfant Plaza for suspects but didn't find anyone involved.

Metro ran tunnel fans to clear residual pepper spray from the air at L'Enfant Plaza, Stessel said. Still some riders were concerned.

Anthony Sanchez, 52, said he was entering the L'Enfant Plaza station when he started to feel "something in his throat" and started coughing. He said he noticed other riders were doing the same.

He said when he asked a Metro Transit Police officer what was going on, he was told juveniles had released pepper spray, but he said no announcements were being made in the station.

Sanchez said he called 911 and the dispatcher transferred him to Metro Transit Police. But he said he hung up after 10 to 12 seconds when no one picked up.

"It seemed likely they weren't going to pay attention," he said. "I was just trying to make sure they knew what was going on."

D.C.'s Lawless Cab Hassle

Illegal rider selection goes unregulated at Union Station in D.C.

Washington

The Amtrak passengers rushed out of Union Station at 1:33 a.m. on a chilly, April Monday, racing to form a long line at an unmarked taxi stand. With Metro closed and no other foreseeable way to get home, they found themselves at the mercy of cabdrivers cherry-picking for the best fares.

“Virginia? Anyone going to Virginia?” a cabbie shouted.

“Georgetown? Anyone going to Georgetown?” another inquired.

These solicitations were violating civil laws that prohibit cabdrivers from rejecting or choosing riders based on their destinations. That violation is punishable by a ticket and fines up to $250. No matter: There were no officers or inspectors there to enforce the law anyway.

When the city’s hack inspectors and cab dispatchers have gone to bed, a special type of bedlam occurs after midnight at Union Station.

Ron Linton, chairman of the District’s taxi commission,

Passengers wait in line to grab cabs at Union Station in the early hours of April 30.

“The drivers know we don’t have the resources to keep inspectors out so late. So they are rolling the dice.”

— RON LINTON, CHAIRMAN OF THE D.C. TAXI COMMISSION.

acknowledged that the system isn’t working the way it’s supposed to.

“We know cabdrivers are not following the rules and things are getting wild past midnight,” he said. “The drivers know we don’t have the resources to keep inspectors out so late, so they are rolling the dice and taking a gamble.”

Privately, cabbies say that the only way they can stay competitive is by doing what their peers are doing. None of them would give their name to a reporter, fearful of losing their license.

“We’re going to severely ratchet up our enforcement actions to take care of the complaints coming from Union Station,” Linton said after being told about the incidents. He just didn’t know when.

Ex-Teacher Back in Md. For Sex Abuse Charges

Washington

Kevin Ricks, the former Manassas high school teacher who was serving a 25-year sentence in a Tucson federal prison after admitting that he abused numerous teenage boys, has returned to the Washington area to face additional charges, jail officials said.

Ricks, who turned 52 on Thursday, is now being held at the Caroline County jail in Denton, Md., on Maryland’s Eastern Shore, jail officials confirmed Sunday. In Maryland, Ricks faces charges of child sex abuse and various sex offenses involving a German foreign exchange student who lived with Ricks and his wife during the 2003-04 school year.

At the time, Ricks was living in Federalsburg, Md., and he had been teaching at Colonel Richardson High School before his contract was not renewed.

Ricks, who is scheduled for release from federal prison in 2032, could face an additional 80 years if convicted in Maryland. (TWP)

Va. AG Cuccinelli Suffers 3 Defeats in 6 Months

That makes the third legal defeat for Cuccinelli, a Republican, in the past six months — a highly public setback for the outspoken attorney general as he kicks off his gubernatorial campaign. ANITA KUMAR

Some of the sharpest minds and most compassionate people can be found in the federal government workforce. Public servants keep us safe, care for our veterans, patrol our borders and find cures for rare diseases.

They make our country stronger and they make a difference in the world. Yet, it is rare that they are publicly thanked for the work they do, every day, to serve their fellow Americans. This week, we would like to call attention to those public servants who help make life better in our communities, the nation and around the world. It is our pleasure and honor to serve with them.

Throughout the week of May 6-12, we celebrate Public Service Recognition Week in towns and cities across the country and here in Washington, D.C., honoring the men and women who work for the nation as federal, state, county and local government employees. We invite all Americans to join us in saying thank you for the care, dedication and hard work they deliver on our behalf each and every day.

Nothing Missing This Year

Capitals have proven they've learned from past playoff miscues

The Capitals

In each of the previous four post-seasons, the Capitals lacked at least one key ingredient all successful teams possess.

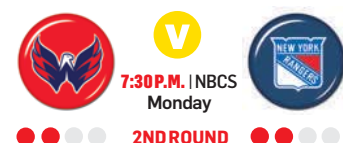

In 2008, they didn't have the experience to finish off the Flyers.

In 2009, they didn't have the killer instinct to put away the Penguins in Game 7.

In 2010, they didn't have the

mental fortitude against the Canadiens, despite bringing home a 3-1 series lead.

Last spring, they simply didn't get enough from the team's stars to beat Tampa Bay.

But after Brooks Laich and his teammates gritted their teeth Saturday, tossed themselves in front of slap shots and willed their way past the New York Rangers to win 3-2 and tie up the Eastern Conference semifinal series, the question must be considered: Is this Washington's best playoff team since 1998, the year the franchise advanced to its only Stanley Cup final?

It might be premature to ask that about an outfit that's a mere 6-5 in the playoffs and hasn't won a game by more than a goal. But this much cannot be denied: The Capitals' collective confidence is growing.

"We feel comfortable in all areas of the game right now," Laich said. "We've changed to a little more

Ovi Off the Hook

Alex Ovechkin said on Sunday he has not heard from the NHL or league disciplinarian Brendan Shanahan about his hit on Rangers defenseman Dan Girardi in Game 4. Nor does the Capitals star left wing expect to. It doesn't look like Ovechkin will face any supplemental discipline for the hit, sources said. Coach Dale Hunter reiterated that he believed the hit was "incidental contact." (TWP) defensive style, but we're still getting the goals when we need them."

Defensively, they've limited opponents to 2.18 goals per game, the fourth best among the eight teams alive as of Sunday afternoon.

Rookie goalie Braden Holtby sports a 1.94 goals against average and a .933 save percentage in 11 starts. Michal Neuvirth, for comparison's sake, posted a 2.34 and .912 in nine starts last season.

And the Capitals are getting key contributions from those paid handsomely to deliver. Alex Ovechkin has two goals in three games and Mike Green has a pair in six. Nicklas Backstrom had his strongest performance since returning from the concussion in Game 4, and Alexander Semin directed a game-high 10 shots at the Rangers' cage.

"There are a lot of areas in our game that we've really cleaned up from years past, and we're getting rewarded for it," he added.

Laich said the Capitals are getting help in two areas tactics cannot account for but are equally important to long playoff runs: health and luck.

The only player who has been unable to suit up this postseason is goalie Tomas Vokoun, who has been out since March with a pulled groin muscle. And given the way Holtby has performed, Vokoun hasn't been missed all that much.

As confident as they are, it's important the Capitals and their championship-starved fans don't look ahead. After all, they need two more to advance, including at least one more at Madison Square Garden against a talented foe.

But after Saturday's effort, it's getting hard not to, isn't it? TARIK EL-BASHIR (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Shanahan on RG3: 'He's the Starter'

Coach says QB made strong impression in weekend's minicamp

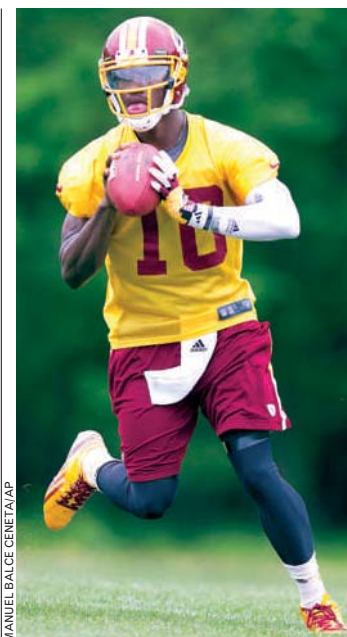

The Redskins

Redskins coach Mike Shanahan came away from his team's 2012 rookie minicamp so impressed with quarterback Robert Griffin III that he named the rookie the team's starter. "He's the starter. Period," Shanahan said Sunday after watching Griffin in five practices over the last three days.

Griffin, whom the Redskins selected with the second overall pick of the draft after giving up first-round picks in 2012, 2013 and 2014 as well as this year's second-round pick, proved himself a fast learner during his crash course introduction to Washington's system.

"Any time you pick a player with the second pick of the draft and you give up another two No. 1's and No. 2 and you move up four spots, you've got a game plan in mind," Shanahan said. "We're going to adjust our system to what he feels comfortable with, and we'll watch him grow."

Previously, Shanahan had said that Griffin would be elevated to starter when he was ready to assume the role, even if that moment didn't come until after the season began.

Redskins QB Robert Griffin III prepares to make a pass at practice on Sunday.

Shanahan said that Griffin made a strong early impression on him when he hit the field for his first practice on Friday. From there, the quarterback continued to soak up the information showered upon him, and executed well on the field.

"He's great. You can see what an incredible athlete he is," Shanahan said. "I was impressed with the first day. He didn't have one bust on a formation or a play call, and I've never had that in all the minicamps I've been involved with."

The surviving members of the Beach Boys put aside their differences for an anniversary tour

Music

A "miracle."

That's the word Al Jardine not-so-jokingly uses to describe the latest Beach Boys reunion — this one consisting of himself and fellow founding Beach Boys Brian Wilson and Mike Love, as well as longtime players Bruce Johnston and David Marks.

After decades of prolonged separations, legal spats and near-reunions, the core Beach Boys are back together, both on stage and for an upcoming new album. Their rebirth, which became a reality this year when the group performed "Good Vibrations" with Maroon 5 and Foster the People at the Grammys, has reawakened musical memories for Jardine, 69.

"When I'm rehearsing ... I'm hearing stuff I haven't performed for many years," Jardine says. "It's wonderful to rediscover the music that way."

When the Beach Boys formed in 1961, it was mostly a family affair: school pal Jardine established the group with Wilson and his late brothers, Carl and Dennis, and their cousins,

Tributes

Moving Into the Present, Honoring the Past

The Beach Boys' 40-city tour takes the band's members to bigger venues than in recent years, including a headlining gig at the Bonnaroo Music and Arts Festival. To honor Carl and Dennis Wilson's contributions (Carl died in 1998; Dennis died in 1983), the band will play alongside videos of the late founding Beach Boys during a tribute in the show. in, Love. Their breezy harmonic tunes and embodiment of freewheeling West Coast sensibilities captured the nation's attention just before the Beatles invaded the United States, and continued for much of the 1960s with timeless songs like "I Get Around," "Surfin' USA" and many more.

Following the 1998 death of Carl

Wilson, the group fractured and began moving in different directions. Over the past 20 years, the Beach Boys' legacy has been mired in messy conflicts that the group's members agreed to squash in honor of their fans and the band's 50th anniversary.

"[The fans] sense that we love each other and that we really want to share that love with them," says Wilson, 69, the visionary songwriter of such classics as "Help Me Rhonda" and "California Girls." Wilson had a turbulent tenure with the Beach Boys, notoriously leaving then returning to the band at one point as he battled mental illness and drug abuse.

"When it comes to the music, all the pretensions are aside," says 71-year-old Love. "All the egos are aside. It's just all about those group harmonies."

"We're slaves to the Beach Boys legacy," adds Marks, 63. "We're just out there trying to keep that legacy alive." DERRIK J. LANG (AP)

Beastie Boys' Yauch recalled as the band's thoughtful visionary

Appreciation

From the start, the Beastie Boys were in-your-face. Adam Yauch was the one who wanted to get in your mind, too.

The demure Yauch ("MCA" when he took the mic) wasn't the most boastful B-Boy; he was the thoughtful one and a steady source of the pioneering hip-hop trio's innovative spirit.

A practicing Buddhist, Yauch, who died Friday at age 47 after a nearly three-year battle with cancer, led the group in performing concerts to benefit Tibet and, as a filmmaker, helped create the band's imagery.

His lyrics could be zany, socially conscious and surprisingly intellectual, with references to politics, the environment and Carl Sagan.

Sean "Diddy" Combs called Yauch "a true pioneer and a creative force who paved the way for so many of us."

"Adam was incredibly sweet and the most sensitive artist, who I loved dearly," said Russell Simmons, whose Def Jam label released the Beasties' "Licensed to Ill," the first hip-hop album ever to top the Billboard 200. (AP/BLOOMBERG)

"I think it's obvious to anyone how big an influence the Beastie Boys were on me and so many others. They are trailblazers and pioneers, and Adam will be sorely missed."

Tired of Obstructive Sleep Apnea?

For millions of adults like you, obstructive sleep apnea (OSA) is a daily struggle, robbing you of the deep restful sleep you need to get through your day. Untreated OSA is also associated with an increased risk of serious health conditions, including high blood pressure, coronary artery disease, diabetes, and stroke.

Right now, sleep specialists at The Center for Sleep & Wake Disorders in Chevy Chase are conducting a research study of an investigational device for obstructive sleep apnea that may help. If you have OSA, and haven't had lasting success with CPAP or other treatments, this study may be right for you.

Take the Next Step

Space is limited. To see if this study may be right for you, call 1-888-975-3370 or visit www.SleepApneaTrial.com

Celebrating DC's Best and Brightest Educators

As we start national Teacher Appreciation Week, DC Public Education Fund salutes the highly effective educators of DC Public Schools.

Great Teachers are the key to student success, yet too often, their work goes unrecognized. This year, we're changing that.

Join us in helping DC Public Schools recruit, train, reward, and retain great DC teachers. To find out more, visit:

TV's Next Big Step

A new special ponders home entertainment's post-cable possibilities

Television

CNBC 9:00 While some wonder which shows will return next fall, the special "Stay Tuned: The Future of TV" takes a longer view. Hosted by Julia Boorstin, it presents interviews with media giants about the evolution of entertainment.

While new sets allow viewers to connect their personal computers to TV monitors, it's clear that this convergence is in its infancy. Will the next big step come from a fancy new gadget introduced by a company like Apple? Or a new must-see offering from a company like YouTube?

The future may be uncertain, but we do know the current situation is confusing and expensive. Consumers are paying more than ever for their cable bill. Many of these people also pay fees for broadband and for one or several phone services. Why not combine them and dispense with several bills?

Sadly, but not unexpectedly, many cable networks have responded to the threat of lost viewers not by creating "must-see" offerings, but by circling the creative wagons with mindlessly derivative and unoriginal programming.

How else to explain the num-

Asking folks to fork over $100 a month in a weak economy to watch 50 variations on 'Storage Wars' is not a sustainable business model.

ber of copycat series about bidding on storage lockers? Italian-American stereotypes behaving badly, or redneck stereotypes falling into swamps? Cooking competitions erupting in obscene tirades?

"Stay Tuned" offers no crystal-ball answers. But asking folks to fork over $100 a month in a weak economy to watch 50 variations on "Storage Wars" is not a sustainable business model. I'm not yet sure whether cable television is in the process of committing suicide, or begging us to put it out of its misery.

Best Bets

CW 8:00

Gossip Girl When Blair realizes she has to be in two places at once, she asks Serena (Blake Lively, right) to fill in for her at one of the events, an important meeting. Ivy and Lola help Chuck wage a vendetta in the new episode "The Fugitives."

FAM 9:00

Make It or Break It It's the final week of qualifications, and Lauren has just undergone an experimental procedure and is worried about whether she'll recover in time to compete in the finals. Jordan is thrown for a loop in the new episode "Truth Be Told."

CBS 9:30

Mike & Molly Mike and Molly's wedding rehearsal, held two days before the real thing, is an unmitigated disaster. Reginald VelJohnson ("Family Matters") guest stars in the new episode "The Rehearsal."

NBC 10:00

Smash Rebecca (Uma Thurman, left) faces a crisis as "Bombshell" gets its first look from an audience. When it falls short, Tom and Julia attempt some adjustments. Frank's life is disrupted by the return of Michael. Dev tries to mend fences with Karen. Megan Hilty also stars in the new episode "Previews."

Finales

Diva Intervention

The brash, sometimes controversial "Two Broke Girls" ends its successful first season Monday with a guest appearance from domestic diva Martha Stewart (8 p.m., CBS, TV-14). Max and Caroline use Caroline's invitation to a Manhattan gala to try to meet Martha and to tout their cupcake business in "And Martha Stewart Have a Ball." (AP)

Alex Bloom, Aron Szapiro

Alexandra ("Alex") and Aron, both 29, are both analysts. They live in D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: Their wedding, with Parisian touches (Alex is half-French), is May 27.

HOW THEY MET: At their first job out of college, working at a Grassroots Campaigns office.

"The hours were crazy and we lived off Blimpie sandwich wraps," Alex says.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "He seemed appealingly neurotic." "She seemed appealingly zen."

FIRST DATE: A hike. Then drinks, then they went to Aron's "hovel-like apartment and made out."

HOW HE PROPOSED: During a train ride to Chicago, "after sharing wine in plastic stem glasses," says Alex.

MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM: Her maroon T-shirt, which "she's worn as pajamas for the last 10 years."

CELEBRATING HERITAGE: Alex made Parisian-style street signs for table markers, and her sister will read a passage from "The Little Prince" in French.

CHRIS EICHLER

"HE SEEMED APPEALINGLY NEUROTIC."
"SHE SEEMED APPEALINGLY ZEN." — ALEX AND ARON

David Hucul, Tracy Wharton

David, 29, is a physics grad student. Tracy, 30, is an architect. They will live in Bethesda after the wedding.

THE MAIN EVENT: May 26 in Tampa, Fla.

HOW THEY MET: Intramural softball. "After a year of showing off my athletic prowess, I convinced her to go on a date with me," says David.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "Wow, who is this girl and how am I going to get her to notice me on a team filled with guys?"

FIRST DATE: Coffee, then burritos when they got hungry because their coffee date lasted four hours.

HOW HE PROPOSED: On the beach in St. Petersburg, Fla., in front of the Don Cesar Hotel, Tracy's favorite landmark.

MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM: His "poorly cut gray sweatpants that he bought from Kmart for $2."

CELEBRATING HERITAGE: Tracy's Cuban heritage will be celebrated with Cuban-inspired appetizers and cocktails, and a cigar roller.

B.I.O.

By Invitation Only

If you'd like to see your wedding or commitment ceremony in B.I.O., send your favorite informal photo (wacky is fine, but please don't send a formal engagement shot), plus your names and ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Please contact us at least one month before your wedding. We'll get back to you with questions.

Phill Giggey, Marley Monk

Phill, 26, is a wardrobe technician at Signature Theatre. Marley, 24, is a freelance stage manager.

THE MAIN EVENT: They wed April 28 at St. Mary of Sorrows Catholic Church in Fairfax Station, Va., the parish Marley grew up attending.

HOW THEY MET: As backstage crew at the New Harmony Theatre in Indiana. "We met during 'Othello,' started dating during 'Crimes of the Heart' and became a couple during 'My Fair Lady,'" Marley says.

FIRST DATE: A comic book store, a record shop and "WALL-E."

HOW HE PROPOSED: When she came to visit during a long-distance period,

Phill "couldn't wait too much longer, so I pulled the ring box out and asked her to marry me" at the Amtrak station where he was picking her up.

PET NAMES: "I tried to call him 'Giggey' when we first met but he asked me to stop. I found out he thought it would put him in the 'friend zone.'"

WHEN SHE KNEW: When he came from Orlando, Fla., to Richmond, Va., to see her and spent 10 hours sitting in the back of a theater, bringing her food during rehearsals. "I knew then that somebody who supported my work and liked me enough to visit me for two days when I could spend very little time with him was a very special person."

Horoscope

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Problem-solving becomes a priority before the day is out — and will continue as such for a few days to come.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will be the one that others turn to today to undo the negative effects of a recent misunderstanding. Wield authority with care.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're beginning a kind of transformation today that will occur slowly and be complete only after you have overcome certain personal challenges.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not find what you are looking for today, or what truly appeals to you. It's time to consider alternatives!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will want to research certain key issues today before you begin making any decisions that will affect those around you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) The information you receive today can be used almost immediately — and when you combine it with experience you've gained, you may be unstoppable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Why would you try to hide today when, in fact, putting yourself and your talents on display can reap immediate results? Get out there!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) What are you waiting for? The time is now — and you know it. You've been holding back for too long, and today is the day.

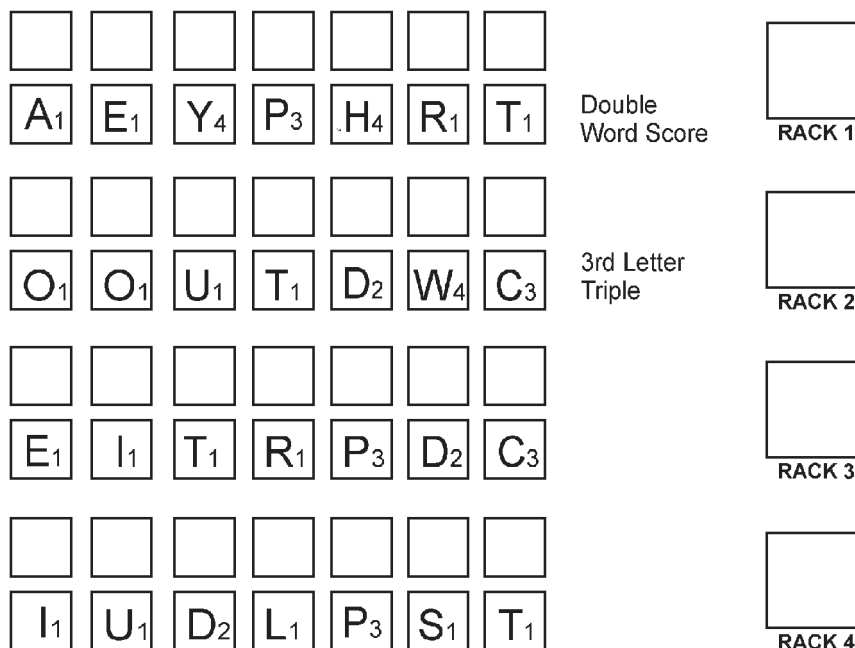

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can learn a great deal from watching someone you admire; he or she will deal with a current challenge in a way that speaks to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be feeling somewhat rebellious today, but take care that you don't rub others the wrong way just to be difficult.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) The longer you wait today, the more impatient someone else will become — and he or she is really the one who maintains a controlling influence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may have to choose between the conventional and the unconventional. Yes, there is something to be said for each!

VOLUNTEER FOR MALARIA RESEARCH STUDIES

In 2010, there were an estimated 216 million cases of malaria worldwide. Currently, there is no effective malaria vaccine.

Healthy adults 18 to 45 years old are needed to participate in a malaria vaccine research study.

This study tests if an experimental vaccine is safe and can prevent infection following exposure to the malaria parasite. If the vaccine does not prevent infection and volunteers develop malaria symptoms, they will receive immediate treatment which is curative.

Study volunteers will be compensated for their participation, estimated to last between 12 and 52 weeks.

To volunteer, call 1-866-833-LIFE (toll-free) or TTY 1-866-411-1010, email vaccines@nih.gov, or visit www.vrc.nih.gov.

'The City of Sarajevo Welcomes Your Taxes!'

Angelina Jolie says she is proud to have been named an honorary citizen of Sarajevo and that she will visit the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina this summer. The city held a ceremony to bestow the honor upon Jolie on Thursday. In an audio message played at the event, Jolie said she was "proud to now be a ... fellow citizen to the people I deeply love and admire." (AP)

Finally, Two People No Gossip Site Can Bear To Link Romantically

Lindsay Lohan, Woody Allen, Allen's wife and a record producer had a business dinner Saturday night in New York City, according to Radaronline.com. The director and actress have met before and "it appears they're working on a project together," wrote Radar. TMZ.com reported that the two have been friends for years and hope to work together soon. West-Kardashian Elopement Put Off Indefinitely

Kim Kardashian's attorney told a Los Angeles judge Friday that Kris Humphries' hurt feelings are slowing down divorce proceedings. Humphries' attorneys said they needed more time to gather information to decide whether to pursue allegations that the marriage was a fraud. The judge told both sides to return Aug. 15. (AP)

Thesis Titled 'Next Time I Want the Honorary Kind'

Former NBA star Shaquille O'Neal received his doctoral degree in education from Florida's Barry University alongside 1,100 other students during commencement ceremonies Saturday. He knelt so the chair of Barry's organizational learning and leadership program could drape a light blue hood on him. O'Neal earned a cumulative GPA of 3.813 while completing 54 credit hours, mostly through online courses and video conferencing. (AP)
